ALLIED ARMIES TAKE FOUR ITALIAN TOWNS

Advances in Torrential Rain

ADVANCING in torrential rains and, in some places, floods, the Fifth and Eighth Armies have captured four more important Italian towns—Benevento, Frigento, Vallata and Grottaminarda.

Benevento was regarded as the centre of the vital Volturno road network, and its capture may affect the Germans' future strategy, as, according to Reuter, a stand by them along the Volturno is now improbable.

A tank battle, lasting several hours, is reported by the German News Agency.

Weather Restricts Air Attacks

Yesterday's Allied communiqué stated:—

"The Eighth Army continues to make progress to the west of San Severo. Enemy equipment destroyed in recent fighting includes 88 millimetre and self-propelled guns.

"Troops of the Fifth Army have captured Frigento. Our troops have entered Benevento and continue operations.

"Air—Unfavourable weather over target areas restricted air activities yesterday. Fighter-bombers attacked enemy transport in the Isernia-Campobasso area. Fighters on patrol encountered a small formation of enemy aircraft and destroyed three of them. From these and other operations three of our aircraft are missing."

The German communiqué said:—"On the South Italian front there was only slight activity. Anglo-American forces followed our rearguards, who withdrew slowly to the north-east after having destroyed any installations which might be useful to the enemy."

PIVOT FALLS

General Clark's right hook in the mountain passes north-east of Naples has broken through, the eastern pivot of Marshal Kesselring's Volturno line, says Reuter. Allied troops have captured Benevento after a 15-mile advance from Avellino, and now control the centre of the vital Volturno road network.

Cairo radio said: "The Fifth Army has left Naples behind and is harassing the Germans, who are falling back towards Rome."

On the other side of the Apennines the Eighth Army is making a double advance. One force is striking across country from Lucera, on the great trans-Apennine highway leading to Rome and the north. The other is pushing beyond San Severo. Right along the Allied line, which stretches south-west from beyond San Severo to north of Naples, the Allied armies are advancing in torrential rain.

AIRFIELDS TAKEN

Algiers Radio reported last night that all aerodromes around Naples are now in Allied hands. Both Allies and Germans are using tanks and mobile guns, the radio added.

The German News Agency stated last night: "Strong Anglo-American tank and motorised forces this morning attempted to advance along the Rome road towards the German covering troops. They intended to reach Giugliano, but the Germans reorganised in time, and the American columns were caught in the open by concentrated fire.

"After a battle of several hours 13 Sherman tanks out of 21 were knocked out, and the enemy was thrown back to his initial positions. Consolidation of the German defensive line north of Naples is now proceeding without interruption."—(Reuter, P.A. and A.P.)

SWOLLEN RIVERS

Eric Lloyd Williams, Reuter's Special Correspondent with Eighth Army advance units, stated this morning: — General Montgomery's pursuit troops are now thrusting forward into new strategic positions as the Germans fall back slowly, but steadily, to their next defendable line, Eighth Army Spearheads, with whom I am travelling, are pushing forward in spite of swollen rivers and boiling torrents pouring down from the drenched hills after recent storms in the Apennines. Sappers, clearing demolitions from villages awash in the floods, are operating under the most difficult conditions.

The Germans are along a line from the mouth of the Volturno across Italy to the vicinity of the small town of Termoli, on the Adriatic.

The Fifth Army's right wing in a mountain drive has cleared the Germans from the Apennine wedge between the Fifth and Eighth Armies. Most important of the towns captured in this latest thrust are Vallata and Grottaminarda, on the hill road from Conturso to Benevento.—(Reuter, P.A. and A.P.)

Awards for Bravery

The Royal Humane Society has awarded parchments for bravery to the following:—

Michael Armstrong (31), a hospital attendant, of Dublin, for rescuing an eight-year-old boy who fell into the Grand Canal.

Mrs. Constance Harris, matron of Glengarra Park School, who already holds the Bronze Medallion of the Royal Life-Saving Society, for saving the life of a twelve-year-old boy who fell into the sea at Dalkey.

Philip J. McNamara (23), of Co. Clare, who went to the rescue of Sergeant Michael Sheehy, who got cramp while bathing at Cappagh.

John P. Lonergan (16), who rescued Teresa O'Sullivan (8), who fell into the River Lee whilst playing on the bank.

Christopher O'Sullivan (39), of Shropshire, who rescued nine-year-old William Harris when the latter fell into the river at North Mall, Cork.

Michael J. Sheehan (40), of Blackrock, Cork, who saved the lives of two young girls who fell from a boat into Blackrock Boat Harbour, Cork, lay unnoticed in some sorting office.

Bid to Capture Cos

GERMANS ATTACK IN DODECANESE

THE Germans launched a sea and airborne attack against the Dodecanese island of Cos early yesterday morning, eleven days after its capture (with three other islands) in a combined Army-R.A.F. operation.

The Middle East air communiqué which gave this news added: "The necessary counter-measures have been taken."

Cos (shown in the map as Kos), second largest island of the Dodecanese group, has several useful airfields. It was subjected to heavy German air attacks last Thursday.

The three other Allied-occupied islands are Leros, Castellorizo and Samos.

The Middle East communiqué stated:—

"R.A.F. aircraft attacked the airfield of Calato and Maritza (Rhodes) during Friday night. None of our aircraft is missing from yesterday's operations.

"Early this morning (Sunday) the enemy launched a sea and airborne attack against the recently occupied islands of Cos.

"The necessary counter-measures have been taken."

According to reliable reports quoted by Reuter's Correspondent in Cairo, the German attack was not on a large scale.

In addition to the comparatively small British garrison on the island there is a substantial number of Italians, who have been allowed to keep their arms and are accepted as "co-belligerents."

"Key" to Bastia Taken

French Headquarters last night announced the capture by Moroccan goumiers (scouts) and sharp-shooters of Teghime Hill, described as the key to Bastia (Corsica).

The hill commands the road leading from the St. Florent cross-roads to Bastia. Beyond this point the road leads eastwards into the narrow coastal plain. Bastia itself is only a few miles away.

Last night's communiqué announced that French troops and American Rangers had reached the coast near Luri, 19 miles north of Bastia. Luri is the most northerly point in the island to be captured.

The communiqué added that German infantry, supported by powerful artillery and mortar fire, strongly defended Teghime and tried to break the Allied advance with violent counter-attacks.

Towards the Golo Valley the French have captured Vinale. Advanced elements are pushing towards Borgo. An ever-tightening blockade is being imposed on Bastia and on the beaches from which the Germans are attempting to evacuate personnel and material, says the communiqué.

Yesterday's German communiqué said that in the north of Corsica German formations repelled attacks "by Badoglio troops, guerillas and de Gaulist Moroccan units."

Brazzaville Radio reported last night that there were now 4,000 Germans in Corsica facing 10,000 French troops, and that during the last 48 hours 17 German 'planes were shot down.—(A.P. and Reuter.)

On the Dalmatian coast fighting continues in the Split sector and at Susak, the town overlooking the Italian port of Fiume.

Partisan forces hold firm to all the Dalmatian islands. On many sectors the Germans are using heavy tanks. A German attack with tanks near Goriza, Slovenia, was repulsed, and a German motorised unit routed near Ljubliana, the Slovenian capital, a Yugoslav message stated.

Spain is Buying Irish Horses

A Spanish Military Commission, led by Colonel de Las Morenas and Captain Carlos Kirkpatrick O'Donnell, of the Spanish Cavalry, is in Eire to buy horses for the Spanish Army.

Captain O'Donnell is a descendant of Red Hugh O'Donnell. He is a nephew of the Duke of Tetuan, head of the family of O'Donnell in Spain. His second name is derived from his connection with the family of the late Empress Eugénie de Montijo, wife of Napoleon III. The only Spanish O'Donnell mentioned in Chambers's Biographical Dictionary is Leopold O'Donnell, Marshal of Spain, who was born at Teneriffe in 1809, became Governor-General of Cuba in 1843, and Duke of Tetuan in 1859.

Pearl Harbour Trial Postponed

THE United States War Department announced last night:—

Mr. Stimson, Secretary of War, and Colonel Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, have concluded that it is undesirable to proceed at this time with the trial of Rear-Admiral Husband E. Kimmell and Major-General Walter C. Short, officers in charge of Hawaii when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbour.

It has been decided to "postpone the proceedings against these officers."—(Reuter.)

Munich and Emden Raided

THE industrial city of Munich was bombed for the second time in forty-eight hours on Saturday night by the Royal Air Force. Nine bombers are missing from this and other operations, which included mine-laying in Axis waters and bombings in the Ruhr and Rhineland.

It is the first German city, the Press Association says, to suffer two-way attacks, from Britain and North-West Africa.

The attack by Bomber Command Lancasters on Munich was completed in about 26 minutes, states the British Air Ministry News Service. During that period 10 four-thousand-pound bombs were dropped every minute.

Emden was again attacked on Saturday, when United States Eighth Army Air Force Flying Fortresses, escorted throughout by Thunderbolts, bombed installations at the port. Emden is the northern terminus of the Dortmund-Ems Canal.

The raid, Press Association states, is understood to have been heavy. The Fortresses destroyed fourteen fighters and the Thunderbolts five.

Hagen, headquarters in the Ruhr of Germany's largest submarine, motor and accumulator factories, was also attacked on Friday night. Few night fighters met the heavy R.A.F. bombers. Anti-aircraft fire ended abruptly after a vivid explosion and the blotting out of searchlights. Two machines were lost. Hagen, a town of 150,000, ten miles south of Dortmund, has also important iron and steel foundries.

American headquarters in Britain announce that United States Eighth Air Force Marauders (B 26s), escorted and covered by R.A.F. Dominion and Allied Spitfires, attacked airfields at Woensdrecht and Haamstedt and Amsterdam-Schipol, in Holland, yesterday/morning.

BOMBS ON BRITAIN

On Saturday night a small number of German aircraft flew over parts of eastern and south-eastern England, and one or two penetrated to the London area, no incidents being reported. Bombs, which were dropped at scattered points, caused little damage. No one was injured. One aircraft, a Ju. 88, was destroyed.

"Enemy 'planes during the day bombed Emden and other places in the coastal area of the Heligoland Bight under the cover of cloud, says a German communiqué yesterday. "Last night strong British bomber formations, again violating Swiss territory, attacked South-Western Germany. A terror attack on Munich caused losses among the population and considerable damage in the city. As far as is at present known, ten enemy 'planes were shot down by A.A. fire.

"The Luftwaffe last night attacked aerodromes and other military objectives in Southern and Central England."—(Reuter.)

General Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the U.S. Army Air Forces, said that he believed that by January 1st Allied air power would out-rank Germany by three or four to one, says a Reuter telegram from Seattle, Washington. Such strength alone, however, would not bring the Axis to its knees.

PARIS RAIDED

Allied bombers attacked the south-eastern district of Greater Paris yesterday afternoon, according to Paris Radio last night.

"Five buildings were destroyed in one locality," the French report added. "So far eight people are reported killed and forty injured."

At least thirteen more German aircraft were destroyed by pilots of Fighter Command in offensive operations over France this afternoon, Press Association said last night, making a total of twenty-four for the day. Fifteen British aircraft are missing, but the pilots of two are safe.

Hopes Rome Will be Spared

Monsignor Spellman, Archbishop of New York, expressed the hope yesterday that "baiting" by the Germans would not lead American forces to destroy Rome.

"I beg for prayers," he said, "that Rome, the city of the soul, eternal Rome, be spared destruction and, above all, that Rome be not destroyed by us, by baiting us." He asked for prayers for the Pope, not for his life, because "death in his agony of suffering would be a mercy," but "for his cause, the cause of Christ, the cause of right, the cause of civilisation."

This was the Archbishop's first public speech since his return to New York from his overseas tour.—(Associated Press.)

Minister's Advice to L.S.F.

Speaking at Cork yesterday, Mr. Gerald Boland, Minister for Justice, congratulated the L.S.F. of Cork City and County on the strength and thoroughness of its organisation, and the smartness it displayed on parade. He was reminded, however, of the number of men who were not yet in any organisation, and said that anybody who waited till the emergency arrived could not do much to help.

In the event of an emergency the Regional and County Commissioners would depend virtually altogether on the Garda and the L.S.F. to make administration possible, and to ensure that the people would be supplied with food and fuel and other essentials of life. In the evacuation of certain cities the community would have to depend on the L.S.F. for the marshalling of the people, transport and traffic control.

He urged members not to neglect their training, and to be always prepared. The present war had a history of lightning developments, and countries which seemed remote from war sometimes awoke to find it on their doorsteps.

Geneva to Donegal in 37 Years

A postcard sent from Geneva in September, 1906, has arrived at Letterkenny post office for delivery locally. It travelled via France and Holland, and is addressed to a former District Inspector of the R.I.C. in Letterkenny, dead for many years. Postal officials consider that the card was mislaid en route, and

This fireman made a striking silhouette while fighting the fire which broke out in the North Lotts on Saturday.

AUSTRALIANS CAPTURE BIG JAPANESE BASE

AFTER nine days' fighting, Finschafen, big Japanese base in New Guinea, fell to a pincer movement by troops of the Australian 9th Division. "Organised enemy resistance has been overcome, and the entire area is now in our hands," said yesterday's communiqué from Allied Headquarters, South-west Pacific.

The capture of Finschafen gives General MacArthur's forces a valuable jumping-off ground from which to hit at the Japanese entrenched at Madang and Wewak, further up the coast, and on the tip of New Britain, about 60 miles away, says Reuter's correspondent at Allied headquarters. Vengeance dive-bombers and Bostons prepared the way for the final assault, and one Allied spearhead moved in along terrain north of the Finschafen jetty area bounded on the west by Ilebbe creek. The Japanese put up only light resistance. The other spearhead jabbed from the south from a position running from Kakagog eastward to the coast of the inlet on which Finschafen stands. This attack met severe opposition.

Allied air blows from Indian and Chinese bases ranging over wide areas of Burma and the former French Indo-Chinese port of Haiphong were reported in communiqués from New Delhi and Chungking yesterday. Targets for R.A.F. 'planes included hutments and Japanese troop positions in the Myittha Valley, a large Japanese paddle steamer which was left burning on the Irrawaddy some miles below Magwe, and Japanese installations at Taunguo.

American bombers of the 10th United States Air Force struck at storage buildings and other installations in the Monywa and Mandalay areas, scored ten direct hits on storage plant near the jetties of the Irrawaddy port of Bassein, and bombed the Japanese at Namti, in Northern Burma.

General Howard Davidson, Commanding General of the U.S. 10th Air Force, said in Delhi that his Command has been preparing for the forthcoming Allied push in Burma. "The time is not far off when our enemy will feel the weight of these preparations," he said. "Our preparations are the first phase of our offensive."—(Reuter.)

Help for Starving Countries

A tribute to England for helping to feed starving nations while she herself was severely blockaded and was dipping into her food reserves was paid by the Archbishop of Dublin when he preached at a Harvest Thanksgiving Service at St. Andrew's Church, Dublin, last night.

"I feel thankful that there are signs that nations—some at least—are beginning to obey the maxim, 'Freely ye have received; freely give,'" said the Archbishop. "A few harvests ago one could point to the awful fact that wheat was being burned in Canada, while on the other hand—in China—millions were starving. There are reasons to hope that that cannot happen again. When England was seriously threatened with a food shortage at the height of the submarine campaign there was famine in India. Large consignments of wheat in ships which could be ill-spared were sent to India."

They heard, he continued, that plans were being made carefully to feed starving countries in Europe as soon as possible. There was a ray of hope for the future in such facts.

A small neutral country like Ireland could aid spiritually starving countries like China by helping the missionary services and by means of the influence of Irishmen abroad.

Although there were many luxuries in this country they had to do without, continued Dr. Barton, and many conditions about which they grumbled, the harvest had been so plenteous that they had no fear in their minds of lack of food for a year to come.

At a Thanksgiving Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, the Bishop of Argyll and the Isles declared that the very prevalence of horror in the world could very easily make them blasés about evil so that they forgot that behind this hideous conflict was the fact of sin.

Thanksgiving Services were held also at St. Werburgh's Church, and St. Philip's Church, Dublin.

Cork Inquiry Allegation

Dermot Murphy, second officer on the ss. Irish Poplar, continued his evidence on Saturday at the official inquiry in Cork into the Cork Harbour tragedy last December, when two launches servicing the Irish Poplar were sunk with the loss of five lives.

Witness, replying to Mr. R. McGonigal, S.C., for the Minister for Industry and Commerce, said he knew of no practice by which the duty of superintending the boarding of the pilot and examination officer was ordinarily carried out by the ship's second officer or any other officer. When he received a report from a deck hand named Scanlan that members of the crew aft had heard a bump, he conveyed this at once to the captain.

Questioned by Mr. F. FitzGibbon, S.C., for Irish Shipping, Ltd., regarding an entry in the scrap log book which had been rubbed out, witness said he saw the entry being erased. It related to the weather during witness's watch.

Mr. McGonigal remarked:—"I consider that any alteration for the purpose of preparing a defence for an action is an irregularity."

Mr. FitzGibbon—Then I am right that a charge of fraud is being made against the ship's officers?

Witness said nothing that Scanlan said to him suggested that the launches were in difficulties, or that there was any connection between the bump felt aft and the launches. It was subsequent to the ship anchoring at her moorings that witness heard there had been shouting amongst the crews of the launches. Scanlan had not told him the crews were shouting: "Stop her, stop her," as they went astern.

The inquiry was adjourned until to-day.

Badoglio: "We March with Allies"

Marshal Badoglio told Allied newspapermen, in his first Press interview since the armistice, that he was "happy to see Italy and her traditional friends marching side by side on the right way," according to United Nations Radio (Bari).

Severe Air Set-backs Possible

—DR. GOEBBELS.

DR. GOEBBELS, speaking in the Berlin Sports Palast yesterday, warned Germany that, although weather conditions appeared to have produced some temporary slackening of Allied raids, severe set-backs in the air war must be reckoned upon in the future.

Dr. Goebbels, who spoke at a Harvest Thanksgiving ceremony, said:—"We must pass through the deep valley of suffering and the pains of this war if we want to climb to the heights. If here or there there should be a coward among us who puts a comfortable life higher than the honour and the future of our nation, and who by treachery and faithlessness is stabbing the common cause and the fighting front in the back, then we are determined to behead him in the name of the whole German nation. But these are only a very few individuals.

"There is a leader at the head of the German Reich and not a treacherous King."

Other points from Dr. Goebbels' speech:—

U-boat War—"Here, again, the British are far ahead of the facts if they believe the danger has been overcome. Some day it will again stand before your eyes in its old magnitude."

Russia — "The disengagement movements of the past few weeks were possible of the past two years' extensive territorial conquests. Of course, we are giving up the advantages of space, but the losses in war potential involved are being compensated by advantages of a strategic nature.

ITALY'S FATE

South Fronts—"Here, also, we have had to pass through an extremely hard test in recent weeks, owing to the treachery of the House of Savoy and the cowardly Badoglio clique. After the Duce's sudden overthrow it was absolutely clear to the German command that the bunch of courtiers and plutocrats in Rome would try to sneak out of the war and take French leave, and then try to go over to our enemies if the prospects were bright. From the House of Savoy nothing else was to be expected. The fate of Italy proves that nobody can swindle his way out of this war."

To Defend Law Clerks

THE latest group of civil servants to take up the question of salaries and conditions with the Government is the District Court Clerks' Association, a body recently formed, to which all but a few of the 120 provincial District Court clerks of Eire belong. They will send a deputation to Dublin shortly to interview officials of the Department of Justice and discuss various matters, including the disparity between provincial clerks' salaries and those of city court clerks.

The provincial man gets up to £200 a year, plus bonus, while the city junior gets £230, plus bonus, with the prospect of increasing to a substantial sum. The deputation will endeavour to show the Department that their work is of extreme importance in the working of the courts, and they will have in this the support of all the provincial law associations and most of the provincial district justices, some of whom have stated that but for their clerks they could not get through their work as well as they do.

Some time ago four positions as District Court clerks were advertised by the Department, with salaries of £90. The Association thinks that these salaries are ridiculously low, especially as the positions advertised were in important centres.

The provincial District Court clerks are being paid on the same scale as in 1922, only 16 out of the 120 of their positions being pensionable, and they will seek to have this matter changed. They maintain that, as liaison officers between the public and the law, which they have been called by several provincial justices, they are doing an important job, more important than that of many other civil servants, who are enjoying better conditions.

Co-ordination of Fire Brigade Work

The possibility that the control of the Dun Laoghaire Fire Brigade may pass to the Chief Superintendent of the Dublin Brigade is being investigated. The change was first mooted three years ago.

Should the control be transferred, Dun Laoghaire Brigade will operate on a basis similar to that of an "out-district" brigade like Rathmines. Engines from Tara Street will go to the assistance of the Dun Laoghaire Brigade. At present they can go only if help is requested by Dun Laoghaire.

Important legal points will have to be considered before the negotiations are brought to a conclusion, and it is understood that the Local Government Department may soon be involved in discussions.

"U-Boats Out in Full Force"

Colonel Knox, United States Navy Secretary, said on the conclusion of his visit to the Mediterranean theatre of war: "We have not yet assailed the European fortress. We have made the first landing, but the hardest and the costliest part of the war is still in front of us."

Any assumption that the war would be over before Christmas was "utterly unwarranted," he added. He said the U-boats had come out again in full force in the Atlantic.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET DRIVE CONTINUES

Fierce Fighting Near Gomel

THE fiercest fighting on Russian fronts, according to latest reports, is at the approaches to Gomel, on the narrow sector between Zaporozhe and the Azov Sea—gateway to the Crimea—and in the Kuban, where the Germans have evacuated Taman, on the peninsula, Berlin Radio stated last night.

Although Marshal von Kluge has assembled a tremendous concentration of fire power, the Russian offensive, it is reported, is maintaining its tempo.

Extremely stubborn fighting is going on at the immediate eastward approaches to Gomel, Reuter's correspondent states. The wedge driven between Gomel and Mogilev has taken the Red Army forces fifteen miles nearer to the key Zhlobin Junction in 24 hours. Several of the strong points have been almost surrounded.

The Russians have crossed the River Sozh at Zalesie and other points 35 miles from Zhlobin, and are now advancing along the Chechera River valley. After crossing the Pronya River north and south of the main railway line into Mogilev, they are closing in upon the city's approaches from three directions. One force is less than 25 miles away at Prodok, to the north-east. The others, advancing beyond Dribin and Kamenka, are 32 miles to the east and 29 miles to the south-east.

Since the capture of Rudnya the Russians have worked their way along the Smolensk railway to within eight miles of Lvozna, last important station before Vitebsk, which lies 24 miles beyond it. A second column moving up on the left is about the same distance away to the south, while a third force, approaching Vitebsk from the north-east, is pressing the Germans back through the difficult country of the Dvina River valley.

SLOW PROGRESS

If progress is slower in this sector, it must be remembered that this is the most heavily fortified defence zone of the whole Russian front. But the advance continues, and in the teeth of the most dogged resistance along roads already sticky with mud and over swampy ground cut by innumerable rivers, where sappers have had to build pontoon bridges standing waist-deep in water, under the direct fire of German machine-guns.

As the Red Army masses its forces along the Dnieper's left bank—where no Germans but prisoners remain, it is stated—Soviet military writers are discussing just how difficult an obstacle a river barrier may prove.

German troops, evacuated to the west bank of the Dnieper River, took with them, according to a Berlin Radio statement:

106,000 head of cattle, 116,000 sheep, 60,000 horses, 18,000 peasant carts, and 62,000 Russian civilians.

"Whatever a river's depth or width, these factors complicate, but do not defeat the work of the sappers," says one Red Army expert. All sorts of new means are at the disposal of the modern army engineer.

In the Taman peninsula—last remnant of the Germans' Kuban bridgehead—the Germans' battered divisions face final defeat and ejection, Reuter states. Russian troops are less than 20 miles from the Kerch Straits. The Germans' foothold here has been narrowed down to two tongues of land separated by the Taman Gulf, and not exceeding 500 square miles in area.

The German communiqué stated: "The town of Taman was evacuated by German troops unnoticed by the enemy, after all military installations had been destroyed. On the central Dnieper, the Germans succeeded in further narrowing enemy bridgeheads."

A late German News Agency message stated:—"Before evacuating our last bridgeheads on the east bank of the Dnieper, railway tracks were torn up for miles, warehouses, saw mills, magazines, factories and other buildings were blown up, bridges destroyed and roads made impassable.

"For three days and nights heavy explosions followed each other and fires spreading across the cities completed the work of destruction."

More than 86,000 trucks, self-propelled guns and other motor vehicles, in addition to 45,000 horse-drawn carts, were brought across, the report stated.

The Soviet communiqué detailed advances in the Gomel direction (up to 6 miles), and towards Mogilev (6 miles). Reconnaissance activity and artillery exchanges were reported on other fronts.

Teachers Call for Tribunal

That the time was over-ripe for the setting up of a tribunal to investigate the whole position of education, in so far as it affected the country, the parents, the children and the teachers, was stated by the Lord Mayor (Alderman M. O'Sullivan, T.D.), at a big rally of Irish national teachers, held at the Teachers' Hall, Parnell square, on Saturday. Alderman O'Sullivan added that he guaranteed his support and the support of the Labour Party to the Minister if such a tribunal were set up.

A resolution was passed demanding an immediate increase in the remuneration of teachers and pensioned teachers commensurate with the greatly increased cost of living.

Mr. H. O'Connor, President, I.N.T.O., outlined the teachers' case.

Mr. T. Frisby, Vice-President, said that out of 13,000 teachers in the twenty-six counties 6,000 had less than £4 per week, 3,000 had less than £3, and 2,000 had from 39s. to 53s. per week.

Mr. I. H. McEnaney, Central Executive, said that if partition were ended the Northern teacher would be from £28 to £38 the poorer when he came on the Eire salary scale.

Northern M.P.'s Meet To-Day

Sir Basil Brooke, Prime Minister, is expected to make an important statement at a special meeting of Northern Ireland Unionist M.P.s called for to-day in Belfast.

Sir Basil will make a statement on Government policy when the first Unionist delegate conference meets in Belfast next Friday. There are fifteen resolutions on the agenda.

The principal reorganisation proposals are the establishment of a school to instruct members in the principles of Unionism and its aims in respect of current social problems, the resumption of the revision of voters' lists, the appointment of a paid organiser for the political education of the young and the opening of a welfare and advice bureau.

The Carrick Association, expressing the opinion that the present constitution of the Unionist Council is undemocratic, suggests that steps should be taken to amend it.

Great police activity continues in Belfast in connection with the shooting of Constable McCarthy at a mill in Odessa street on Friday. An intensive comb-out of the district has so far yielded no arrests.

World News in Brief

Awards to Russian Pilots—Four pilots on the Leningrad front have been awarded the Order of Lenin for shooting down, between them, 69 German 'planes, says Moscow radio.

Diamond Jubilee — On October 4th, 1883, in a Glasgow Mission Hall, 30 boys met for a drill parade. That was the beginning of the Boys' Brigade, which yesterday celebrated its diamond jubilee and now has 132,000 members.

Ships' Enormous Fire Power—The United States Navy Department disclosed yesterday that it now has four battleships embodying secret armaments that give enormous fire power. One of these vessels sank three Japanese cruisers and shot down 32 'planes in one engagement in the Solomons.

Engineers' Strike May End.—The feeling in Barrow is that the 8,000 Vickers-Armstrong workers, who struck 18 days ago, will be back at work possibly on to-night's shift. Final decision will be taken by a mass meeting of the strikers to-day, when they will be told the outcome of Saturday's negotiations between the union's representatives and the employers.

Flag Officer of Ceylon — Rear-Admiral Randolph S. G. Nicholson, formerly Commodore of Chatham Naval Barracks, has been appointed Flag Officer of Ceylon. He succeeds Rear-Admiral Arthur D. Read.

Coal Strike Settled—A settlement was reached yesterday of the strike at Philadelphia Colliery, Co. Durham, where 800 miners have been idle since Wednesday night because of a grievance about score prices.

Out of Business.—For selling perambulators at prices over the controlled figure, an order to close his business for a year was made in Paisley Sheriff Court against Nimmo Gardner Napier, who had stores in several Scottish towns.

Paris Housing Crisis—More than 5,000 bombed-out families have sought refuge in Paris, said Vichy radio yesterday. "There is now a serious housing crisis in the capital," said the announcer, adding that during the past 30 months air-raid casualties in France have been 7,139 dead and more than 12,000 wounded, exclusive of the last raids on the Paris region and Nantes.

Practical Scheme of Co-operation

A practical and successful experiment in co-operation for the good of the town community is being run at Bagenalstown, Co. Carlow, by the local guild of Muintir na Tire.

A penny per week from every working man in the town supplemented by a penny-for-penny contribution by employers, brings in £10 to £12 per month, out of which poor people are supplied with free fuel and jam.

The Muintir na Tire guild has prepared schemes, some of which are in practice, affecting all sides of life in the town, including a boxing club, a handball club, a waste paper collection service, which sent 20 tons to Dublin recently, a welfare committee which deals with cases of sickness among the poor, and an allotment scheme.

The McGrath Trust, which some months ago brought Bagenalstown before the eyes of the country with its provision of doweries for girls born in the town, provides also for the building of a town hall and a sports field. The sites for these have been chosen provisionally.

At present, plans are being made for a basket-weaving industry in the town. The supply of sallies is available, and the only lack is a competent instructor. A committee has been formed to arrange for the supply of hot meals to school-children, and a grant to help this has been authorised by the town commission.

Night Duel Across Straits

Big guns were engaged in a lively duel over the English Channel for some time late last night, states a Press Association message. Shells fell in the vicinity of Dover at intervals after British guns had poured a stream of shells over the Straits.

The guns opened fire a little after 10.15, and they were in action for twenty minutes before German batteries between Boulogne and Calais replied.

The bombardment continued at a lively pace, with brilliant gun flashes lighting up the coastlines and sky on each side of the Channel.

Great Finish for Irish Cambridgeshire

GOOD luck seems to run in cycles, and, certainly, Mr. J. McVey, junior, is experiencing his share of it at present. Last Saturday week his colours were successfully carried by Solferino in the Irish St. Leger, while in the Scurry Handicap, his recent purchase, Astrologer scored. Defying the 5lb penalty incurred for that win, Astrologer, again capably ridden by John Power, just got up to win the Irish Cambridgeshire by a head from Dunseverick, with Mill Boy, a further neck behind, third.

It was an exciting race, and nearly all the nineteen starters were there with a chance, with about a furlong to go, when Dunseverick went to the front in the centre of the course, followed by Astrologer, on the rails, and Mill Boy racing on the stands' side of the course. It looked odds on Dunseverick, but vigorous riding by John Power was rewarded by winning one of the best races seen at the Curragh for some time. Astrologer's brother, Astrometer, the 1942 Cesarewitch winner, started favourite and finished fourth.

The four starters for the Royal Whip provided a fine finish, short heads only separating them.

Blackrock Out of Luck

BECTIVE ... 11 BLACKROCK .. 0

A SPLENDIDLY-CONTESTED game at Donnybrook was spoiled by Blackrock losing three men in as many minutes when, 10 minutes to go, they were making a grand effort to wipe out Bective's lead of a try. Blackrock played for most of the game with 14 men—D. O'Brien retiring early on—and finished with eleven. Bective got two easy tries (D. O'Neill) in the closing minutes. A. Coleman converting one.

The Bective forwards were the quicker on man and ball, but scrummaged badly and the Blackrock backs gave a promising display even without T. Chamberlain and L. O'Brien. The "key man" in most of their operations was the Connaught international, C. Finan, who, both at centre and stand-off, was very adroit and nearly always made ground before giving a timely pass. The Bective backs lacked thrust save when the full back, A. Coleman, joined in. He was largely responsible for the first try, taking a pass from the stand-off at his own 25, and clearing the opposition before returning to J. O'Rourke, who sent J. Doyle in between the posts. K. O'Brien was outstanding in the pack with D. O'Neill, J. Doyle and L. Lysaght also showing up.

MONKSTOWN ... 13 DUBLIN U. ... 8

Monkstown defeated Dublin University at Sydney Parade by 3 goals (1 penalty) to a goal and a try. Dublin University had only a skeleton of last year's team out, all the backs but three being newcomers. They hope, however, to have many of the old hands back in a few weeks time.

Monkstown played in fine fashion, notably in the first half, and some of the passing movements being splendidly executed.

In the first half Mayne scored for Trinity, Barnes converting. M. Aherne got over for Monkstown, Bergin adding the points, and later the same player landed a penalty. In the second moiety L. Craig got a try for Monkstown, Bergin again converting, and Rutherford scored an unconverted try for Trinity.

U.C.D. .... 3 PALMERSTON ... 0

University College beat Palmerston by one try to nil at Belfield. Last season's cup finalists shaped well, especially their forwards, among whom Spellman always was to the fore.

The Palmerston pack were not as fiery as last season, and a last-moment change among the backs and forwards, owing to the absence of West, detracted from the effectiveness of the team. Ryan scored for U.C.D. close on half-time.

ST. MARY'S ...... 6 LANSDOWNE 0

St. Mary's College just about deserved their win, by two penalty goals to nil, over Lansdowne at Lansdowne road in a game which provided an odd sparkle but far too much dreary play. The backs on both sides handled so badly that anything like a proper back movement was out of the question. Every time a move looked like developing some one of the backs would either fail to hold his pass or pass so badly himself that the ball went loose. The forward play, which was lively and clever enough, was never sufficient to relieve the tedium.

Lansdowne were without P. Moran and F. Cosgrave, and T. Coveney was missing from the St. Mary's backs. F. Scott kicked both goals for the winners, the second from ten yards inside the halfway line.

OLD WESLEY.. 4 OLD BELVEDERE 0

Having had the better of the play for three-quarters of the game, Old Belvedere were rather unlucky to be beaten by a dropped goal by Old Wesley at Jones's road. Belvedere's forwards out-scrummaged the opposing eight, and gave their backs a plentiful supply of the ball. The backs, among whom D. Thorpe, G. and B. Quinn were prominent, took advantage of the good service, and were almost constantly on the attack, but brilliant defensive work by Carry, whose play was a feature of the match, and Wolfe saved the Wesley line. Midway through the second half Carry smartly dropped a goal.

WANDERERS 11 CLONTARF ... 0

Wanderers' vastly better backs were well enough served by their forwards to make the defeat of Clontarf at Castle avenue a compartively simple matter. With C. R. Graves getting the ball back from most of the scrums, and C. McManaway, W. Dean and L. N. Horan dominating in the line-outs, the Wanderers' backs were continually on the move, and even the sound Clontarf defence, in which O. Palcic, N. C. Mahony and M. B. Williams did sterling work, could not cope with their lively opponents.

Reid sent Myles over from a swift blind-side movement for Wanderers' first-half try, which C. McGibney converted. In the second half McGibney landed a penalty goal, and J. Satchwell finished clever forward work by L. Horan with an unconverted try.

HOCKEY LEAGUE HOLDERS BEATEN

Railway U. ... 4 Portrane 3

PORTRANE, the Senior League champions, went under by the odd goal in seven to Railway Union at Park avenue. Early in the second half T. Bastable (R.U.) received a severe nose injury from a rising ball and was removed to hospital. At the time of his departure Railway were leading by 3-1. With a depleted team Railway lost their two goals' advantage, but they deservedly got a deciding goal in the closing minutes, when Lonergan was awarded a penalty goal in a penalty-bully, which was taken four times. Portrane did not reach their best form at any stage of the match, and will have to show improvement if they hope to retain their title.

Devlin and Leopold scored for Railway in the first half, and P. Neville for Portrane. On resuming, Devlin scored again before Callan and P. Ennis netted for Portrane. Lonergan got the winning goal, as already stated.

Y.M.C.A. .... 3 Dublin U. ... 1

Y.M.C.A. were well worth their 3-1 win over the Irish Senior Cup holders, Dublin University, at Londonbridge road. With J. V. Luce, T. N. Strong and O. Lush gone from their attack, Dublin University were weak near goal. The defence was sound, however, until the closing stages, when Y.M. scored two goals in quick succession. Jones got the only first-half goal for Dublin University. Sanderson (penalty corner) equalised early in the second half, and in the closing stages R. Walker and Hussey scored further goals for Y.M.

Pembroke W. ...... 3 Corinthians 1

Pembroke Wanderers, who show only one change from last season—Le Blanc for Hanrahan—were not flattered by their 3-1 win over Corinthians at Serpentine avenue. The visitors were on the defensive nearly all the time, and only some great saves by G. Cole and a grand exhibition of full-back play by W. Lindsay saved them from a heavier defeat. McNulty scored twice for Pembroke in the first half from penalty corners. On the change over, D. Cole scored for Corinthians, and V. Raby for Pembroke.

Three Rock .... 1 Dalkey 0

Dalkey entertained Three Rock Rovers at Stradbrook and sustained defeat by the only goal of the match in an encounter which promised much that remained unfulfilled. With their captain (W. Haughton) at centre-half, and W. Thompson at inside left, Dalkey exerted considerable pressure in a scoreless first half, lack of cohesion among the forwards nullifying the strong running of H. Richardson on the right wing. Three Rock Rovers gained control in the second period, and at an early stage J. V. Luce scored an excellent goal from a penalty corner.

James's Gate .... 2 Avoca 0

Avoca began the season with a visit from St. James's Gate to Newtownpark avenue, where, in a game which lacked variety, the visitors netted once in each half without reply. Avoca introduced W. Mellon (Dublin University) at right back, and, although C. O'Sullivan was noticeable on the right wing, they missed several chances in the opening period before H. Darlington scored for St. James's Gate with a powerful drive. Exchanges were even until the interval, and, despite pressure by Avoca upon the resumption, the visitors always appeared the more purposeful side. R. Shakespeare, who had moved from centre-forward to the left wing, gained possession and finished off a clever run by scoring his side's second goal.

LAWN TENNIS

A Dublin team, styled "The Racqueteers," headed by R. F. Egan and T. G. McVeagh, defeated a Cork team at Sunday's Well Club by 5 matches to 3. Only doubles were played. Cork, whose leaders were B. A. Haughton and F. C. South, won both the men's doubles, but lost both the women's doubles and the contest was decided on the mixed doubles.

Clothes Renovating Prices.—The Association of Valet and Clothes Renovating Services is formulating proposals to put before the Central Price Regulating Committee, which has asked the Association to collate price lists for certain types of work.

CITY CUP FOR CORK UNITED

CORK .... 4 DRUMCONDRA 1

BY scoring a decisive victory over Drumcondra at the Mardyke yesterday Cork United won the City Cup for the first time. It was a fast, keen game, but after the first quarter of an hour Cork dictated matters, and, although a goal down early on, they led by 3 goals to 1 at the interval.

It was not so much a case of Drumcondra failing to live up to expectations as one of Cork rising to the big occasion in determined fashion. They were without J. Reilly centre-forward, who is on the injured list, and brought in Curtin, last year's centre-half, who was signed over the week-end, to lead the attack. He made a fine job of it, too, using his weight and speed with much effect. Dunne was very clever, and Venner a brilliant winger.

The home halves co-operated splendidly. McGowan was making his first appearance of the season, and, unluckily, was injured midway through and finished the game at outside right. The defence was very sound. Drumcondra were without Mulville, for whom O'Brien deputised, and they played most of the second period with only ten men, O'Brien retiring injured. Venner was another to take a knock, but after a short delay he was able to carry on.

One of the very few mistakes by the home defence allowed McGrane in for the first goal after ten minutes. The equaliser came from Dunne after the ball twice had rebounded from the crossbar. Curtin gave Cork the lead, following a good run by Dunne. Just before half-time Venner added the third goal from McCarthy's pass. Five minutes from the end Dunne scored the fourth.

DUNDALK SURPRISED

LIMERICK ...... 6 DUNDALK 5

Excellent football was seen at Limerick yesterday when the home team won their first match of the season and gave promise of doing better in subsequent competitions. Dundalk had the advantage early on, but Limerick fought back gamely and produced a great final burst. In 15 minutes McCartney and Flanagan had Dundalk two up, but Robinson reduced the lead and O'Leary equalised. Before the interval Flanagan converted a penalty for Dundalk. Dykes put Limerick level in the second, but Holman (own goal) restored Dundalk's lead. O'Leary headed a fine goal for Limerick and McKenna (2) put the home team ahead. Just on time Flanagan scored Dundalk's fifth goal.

THE OTHER MATCHES

ROVERS .... 1 BOHEMIANS 0

All the thrills at Milltown yesterday were packed into a few minutes in the second half. After Landers had cleared a great header from Eglinton, Coad rushed in and scored for Rovers. Then Bohemians had a penalty, which Palmer saved from Glennon, and the latter's return—a powerful drive—was diverted by Healy.

SHELBOURNE 2 JAMES'S GATE 2

Shelbourne had much the better of the play at Shelbourne Park on Saturday, but indifferent shooting caused them the loss of a point. M. Murray (Gate) and Cassidy and Walsh (Shelbourne) scored in the first half, and Matthews (Gate) in the second half.

THE FINAL TABLE

Compensation for Oil Companies

NEW YORK, Saturday.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has announced notification from the Department of State that its subsidiaries will receive 18,391,641 dollars, plus interest of 3,940,843 dollars, in settlement of claims against the Mexican Government in connection with the expropriation of the company's properties in 1938.

The Sinclair Oil Corporation has received 1,500,000 dollars as final instalment of the 8,500,000 dollars which Mexico agreed to pay for all of the company's wholly-owned subsidiaries there.

INCHICORE PARADE

All sections of the local A.R.P. services took part in a parade yesterday to St. Michael's Church, Inchicore, Dublin, where Mass was celebrated by the Rev. G. J. O'Sullivan. The parade was organised by Mr. W. E. Hennessy, Area Warden; and Deputy Wardens J. O'Neill, J. Sides, F. Callen and S. J. Harrison. Miss A. Roche was in charge of the women wardens, and the L.S.F. were under District Staff-Officer W. H. Murphy, District Officer D. Peelo led the A.F.S., District Officer W. Jones the St. John Ambulance Corps, and District Officer J. A. Cullerton the rescue and demolition services. St. James's Brass and Reed Band led the parade.

AN TAOISEACH'S PRAISE FOR GAELIC TEACHERS

An Taoiseach, in a Golden Jubilee Year message to the editor of "Buadh-Irish na Feile Ordha" (The Ard Chraobh Jubilee Year Book), issued on Saturday, praises the work of the Ard Chraobh teachers for the language. "The Ard Chraobh is the Mathair na Chlainne of all the other Gaelic League branches," he says, and concludes: "I congratulate the Ard Chraobh on its work and the good results attained, and pray that in future these may be increased one hundred fold."

The book, which will shortly be published, will contain articles dealing with the principal events in the fifty years' history of the branch, of which Mr. de Valera has been President since 1921.

Shares Difficult to Buy Despite Higher Prices

THE outstanding feature of quieter markets on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week was the increasing interest in Irish Securities. Some weeks ago attention was more centred in cross-Channel Securities, and there was certain buying of the more speculative issues, but in the past few days interest has turned to the home markets again.

Good dividends and company reports have created a good deal of demand for Irish Industrials. As usual, buyers are finding it difficult to get their requirements, even at the high levels prevailing. Good-class Preference shares commanded higher prices all along the line, but supplies were limited.

NEW ISSUE

To-morrow the lists open for the issue of £755,000 Limerick 3½ p.c. Redeemable 1956-72 stock at 99. A sinking fund will be established for the redemption of the stock, and will be sufficient to redeem the whole of the stock by maturity. The issue has aroused a great deal of interest, for it is impossible to pick up any gilt-edged security, at the moment, at near this price. For instance, Dublin Corporation 3½ p.c. stock is standing at 103½, while the 3½ p.c. Fourth National Loan last changed hands at 106½. The issue should prove popular, and the stock is confidently expected to open at a premium.

Towards the week-end there was nervous selling of Guinness units, and the price came back sharply to 120/6, but later steadied to 121/-. The chief fear was that a restricted supply of barley might have an adverse effect on the company's export trade. Even should the company have to face such a difficulty it does not justify holders throwing away their shares. The financial position is very strong, and the management in good hands. The directors can be relied upon to do everything possible to meet this or any other difficulty. The Ord. shares give a return which compares very favourably with that to be had from similar leading issues across the water.

Leethams (Ireland) report, just published, showed that this concern had a highly successful year, for the profit was almost doubled at £17,734. Ord. shareholders received a dividend of 12½ p.c., which is the maximum allowed under the limitation of dividends. These shares are a sound holding, but they are almost impossible to procure. Even the increased list of 44/- has failed to attract sellers.

Holders of Prices Tailors (Ireland) Ord. shares got a pleasant surprise when the dividend was doubled at 5 p.c. This company, like so many other Irish concerns, has done well since the outbreak of war. The Ord. are in request at 4/-, at which level they hold speculative attractions. The 6 p.c. Pref., if they can be picked up at near the present price of 18/- should be worth attention, for the high yield should compensate for any risk involved.

Draperies were in the limelight, and, although the number of shares changing hands was by no means large, sharp advances resulted. Pim Bros. issues were outstanding. The Ord. almost doubled their price at 8/6, and the Pref. made headway to 42/6. It is well known that all drapery concerns are doing considerably better; but, in the case of Pim Bros., Ltd., a lot of leeway has to be made up, for the Pref. dividend is in arrears since July 1931.

IRISH CINEMAS

Irish Cinemas Ord. shares came into demand again, and the price recovered to 4/6. In certain quarters confident hopes are entertained that a dividend on these shares will be paid this time. If a dividend should be forthcoming then the Pref., at 19/6, do not look overvalued when compared with other Irish industrial Pref. shares.

The market in Home Rails was not so lively, and movements held little of outstanding interest. Among Great Southern, the only semblance of a feature was the quiet, but steady, buying of the Deb. up to 67. This stock looks the best purchase of all the issues, for it should receive fair treatment under any reorganisation scheme.

Iron and Steel Share Yields

By Our London Financial Correspondent.

FEW leading Industrial shares stand at prices to-day to yield the investor more than 4½ p.c. There are many, indeed, which, possessing what are believed to be desirable post-war prospects, are less favourable to the holders. There is, however, one important class of industrial issues in which many millions of pounds are invested which have failed to attain the high levels of the general average. That class comprises the many great iron and steel companies on which Britain is dependent for the vast output of munitions of every kind, including guns and ships.

These companies are working at the highest pressure. Their profits are substantial, although they suffer, like every other industrial concern, from the heavy burden of taxation. Yet their shares can be bought at prices which, on the basis of the most recent dividends, offer yields of from 5½ to over 7 p.c.

Hadfield's 10/- shares at 30/3 yield £7 8/- p.c.; Pease and Partner's 10/- shares at 11/6, £6 19/- p.c.; Baldwin's 4/ shares at 5/9, £6 19/- p.c.; John Brown's 10/- shares at 26/6, £3 15/- 6 p.c., tax free, or £7 11/- gross. So one might go on through the list. The cause is not far to seek. Investors remember the difficulties of such companies after the last war, when, with the cessation of the demand for their products, the large increases in capital made for war purposes lost earning power.

MILLIONS LOST

Many millions of capital was lost, and for some years shareholders went without dividends. Nothing like this is anticipated after this war. There have been no large capital increases, and conditions are completely changed, both from the monetary and the engineering points of view. Post-war planning is envisaging a large increase in pre-fabrication, in which these great companies should play an important part.

Full report of the Odeon Theatres, Ltd., shows that the trading profit of the group amounted to £2,163,687, compared with £1,700,000 last year, an increase of over £463,000. The parent company's net profit was £1,110,443, after charging E.P.T. of £629,243 to the subsidiary companies. From this total the parent company has set aside for a reserve for income tax and E.P.T., in addition to the £629,243 referred to, a total of £775,000.

As previously announced, the dividend for the year is 15 per cent., compared with 10 per cent. in the previous year. During the year the company had acquired 26 additional theatre properties, but only a portion of the profits from these acquisitions had been brought into the accounts.

COMPANY NEWS

Ranks (Ireland).—Final dividend on the Ordinary share capital of 5 per cent. (3d. per share), less tax, making 10 per cent. in respect of the financial year to January 2, 1943, payable to holders registered on October 23, 1943. Dividend warrants will be posted on October 30. A similar dividend was paid for the previous year from earnings of 10.5 per cent. The 5/- shares are quoted at 14/3.

"A Dying Trade"

The plight of the vehicle-building trade was revealed at a sitting of the Wages Advisory Tribunal at the Buildings of Industry and Commerce, Kildare street, Dublin, on Saturday, when an 8/- bonus application for 200 men was made by the National Union of Vehicle Builders, and opposed by the Coachbuilders' Association.

"We are trying to keep going in a dying trade," stated Mr. J. Ryan, of Messrs. Ryan and Co., Ringsend, "and if this bonus is granted the Coachbuilders' Association firms will be trading at a loss."

From June until September this year, he said, only seven commercial vehicles were taxed, as compared with 2,000 in 1938. At the moment, repair and maintenance were their chief work, but they had to take work from coachbuilders themselves, and, therefore, charge lower rates.

Polish Factory Fire

Considerable damage was done by a fire which broke out about 11 o'clock on Saturday morning in the two-storey premises of Messrs. Kebro, Ltd., boot and floor polish manufacturers, Strand street, Dublin. Quantities of turpentine and other inflammable materials were saved.

Sections of the Dublin Fire Brigade and a unit of the Civil Defence Fire-Fighting Company of the Defence Forces from the Curragh, and stationed at Thomas street, co-operated effectively in combating the spread of the flames, and the fire was under control within an hour.

Mr. Christopher Kelly, manager of the firm, was injured and taken to Jervis Street Hospital, where he is getting on well. There were about fourteen workers, boys and girls, in the building when the fire broke out.

Insurance at low rates with Phoenix Assurance Co., Ltd., 10-12 Trinity street, Dublin. R. H. Bolton, Manager. Agents everywhere. —(Advt.)

HAMILTON AND HAMILTON

The above auctioneers are offering by public auction, on October 12th, 135 Terenure road, North. These premises are let on leases, the nett income being £430 10/- per annum; also The Grove, Northbrook road, off Leeson Park, on 2½ acres. The residence is detached. There is a nett income of £55 18/9, which is collected from adjoining property; and, for the same owner, four ground rents amounting to £30 per annum. On the same day, 7 Ashdale road, Terenure, will be offered.

HOT MEALS AT 1d. PER WEEK

A hot mid-day meal costing the pupils a penny per week is being provided by the authorities of Waterville, Co. Kerry, Vocational School.

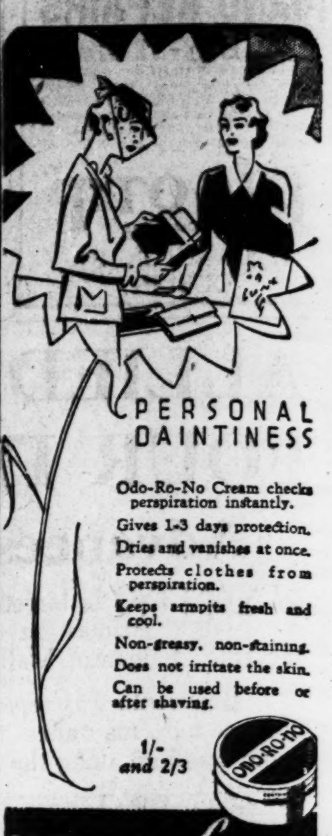

The meal consists of soup, made from bones supplied by the local butcher, and an assortment of vegetables from the school's well-stocked half-acre kitchen garden. Bread is brought by the pupils themselves. Between forty and fifty sit down to the meal every day. The girls are taught how to lay the table and how to serve the meal, and both boys and girls are taught proper deportment at table.

The boarding school experiment begun last year is also being continued. Twelve girl pupils of the Vocational School have taken up residence at the hostel for the coming session. They pay 2s. a week, bring most of their own food supplies, are under the care of a matron; and the proper running of the house becomes part of their curriculum. Department of Education officials who inspected the hostel recently reported favourably on it.

AIMING TO GAELICISE DUBLIN YOUTH

A nation-wide drive for funds is being made by An Cine Gaedheal, the Gaelic youth movement founded in 1937. It is a non-political movement aiming at the Gaelicisation of Dublin youth. Irish, dancing and singing classes, ceilidthe, football, hurling and camogie teams and debating and dramatic societies have been formed, and in summer hiking and cycling trips are arranged. Encouraging the people who have left school to take up Irish and speak it publicly, the Association aims at giving a good example which will increase public interest in Irish.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE
without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour.
The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned, and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.
Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-.

Three Men Injured in Car Crash

Two motor drivers employed by a Dublin private hire car company are detained in the Royal City of Dublin Hospital, Baggot street, as the result of an accident at the corner of Fitzwilliam street and Baggot street, when the car in which they were driving hit, it appears, a lamp standard. They are G. Mullen and J. Fay. Mullen, it was stated yesterday, was badly injured, but Fay was reported to be comfortable.

A third driver involved in the accident, Michael Scanlon, was treated at the hospical and discharged. The wing of the motor car was damaged.

MONKSTOWN PUBLIC PARK PROPOSAL

The acquisition of the land and premises of Monkstown Park, formerly used as a private school, is under consideration by the Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation. The Manager has reported that these lands were scheduled in the sketch plan prepared under the Town and Regional Planning Acts to form part of a central public park at Monkstown, in connection with which the Corporation has already acquired Dunedin House and lands. A proposal on behalf of Lords Longford and De Vesci is also under consideration, and the lands attaching to it also form part of the proposed central park.

Councillor R. J. O'Huadhaih, has a motion for to-night's meeting of the Corporation that the park shall be known as the Patrick Moran Memorial Park. Mr. Moran was a member of the I.R.A., who was executed.

DUBLIN P.E.N. DEBATE

Dublin Centre of P.E.N., at their annual general meeting on Saturday, unanimously elected Mr. Rutherford Mayne president.

Mr. Hilton Edwards provided material for a lively debate in a lecture on "Literature and the Drama." He dealt with plays as drama and as literature, and said the theatre did not want a thesis, which had been proved by Shaw, who had put his thesis into his preface. Many plays were excellent reading, but poor theatre, a point which he illustrated with readings from many distinguished dramatists' work. Mr. Edwards hit hard at the critics, who were defended by Mr. David Sears in the discussion which followed.

Dr. J. F. Larchet gave a talk on the importance of the orchestra to the theatre, in which he traced the history of the orchestra down to modern times.

Mr. Austin Clarke, retiring president, was the subject of complimentary remarks by Mr. A. Ganly, who was in the chair.

The following officers were also elected:—Mr. Maurice Walsh, vice-president; Mr. Mervyn Wall, hon. treasurer; Miss Kathleen O'Brennan, hon. secretary. The following were elected to the Committee:—Senator F. H. O'Donnell, Mr. Austin Clarke, Mr. T. F. Collins, Miss Dorothy Day, Mr. R. M. Fox, Mr. Gerald Harris, Mr. A. Ganly and Mr. David Sears.

County Management

"The principle of the Management Act is a good one. The principle has been adopted, and the manner of its application and enforcement may have to be reconsidered and amendments introduced. There may have to be adjustments so that there would be some permanent balance for the proper administration and control of staffs, while the doctrine of popular control must remain as an effective element."

This is not a quotation from the editorial columns of the Irish Times. It is an extract from what the Minister for Local Government said last Wednesday, when delegates to the Fianna Fail Ard Fheis had some pungent remarks to make about their experience of the County Management Act. If we call attention to the remarkable coincidence between the Minister's conclusions and the advice which this newspaper has ventured to tender to him, we hope that Mr. MacEntee may not find it necessary — like his leader — to indulge in an examination of his administrative conscience. If that risk is involved in the statement that we find ourselves in full agreement with the Minister, and that we heartily welcome his announcement that amendments of the Act are "receiving a very great amount of careful consideration," the risk must be accepted. Whether there is likely to be an equal measure of agreement between us when Mr. MacEntee tables his contemplated amendments is quite another matter. That, we fear, hardly may be hoped for, unless the Minister and his colleagues are prepared to abandon the kind of patchwork procedure which has characterised so many of their efforts to create efficient organs of local administration. The need of hasty amendments of important and long-deferred legislative measures has been demonstrated in other cases than that of the County Management Act. Two years' experience of the Fire Brigades Act, and the tragic sacrifice of young lives at Cavan, were sufficient to justify this newspaper's objections to a measure which left it in the hands of local councils to say whether the country ought, or ought not, to be provided with an effective fire-fighting organisation. Now the Cavan Fire Tribunal has issued an official condemnation of the three-year-old Act and a call for mandatory legislation on the lines advocated in these columns. Another example of futile and fumbling legislation—even more serious, though less tragic in its obvious consequences — can be found in the "regional" provisions of the Town and Regional Planning Act of 1934. That Act has been operative for nine years, during which local authorities have been "permitted" to do things that obviously were necessary—but which nobody in his senses could have expected them to do. Then there is the immediately relevant case of the Management Act as it was designed to apply to Dublin's metropolitan area—an Act which was at once amended by hasty decisions to transfer the County Manager's functions to bodies of State Commissioners. In all directions one sees a series of afterthoughts and efforts to patch up ill-designed machinery.

We set out these facts in order to ask Mr. MacEntee some direct questions. Can remedies for such chaotic conditions be found in mere amendments of the Management Act? Are the provisions of its interlocked measure, the Local Government Act—which compel county managers to play up to the idiosyncrasies of diminutive bodies of urban councillors and town commissioners—to remain in force? Cannot an overwhelming case be made for the transfer to county councils of the nominal powers that now remain in the hands of those archaic survivals? The Minister speaks of "the tremendous powers" which such bodies now retain under the Management Act, and forecasts amendments to increase these powers. Does he really contemplate procedure under which the Municipal Councils of Dublin and Cork will have powers identical with those to be exercised by the urban councils of towns and villages with populations of two or three thousand people? Could not the local affairs of such tiny communities be handled adequately by voluntary parish councils as channels of communication with county councils and county managers? Two important results could be effected by the decision to get rid of bodies whose survival only serves to complicate the machinery, and to obstruct the business, of local administration. County managers, whose energies now are dissipated in efforts to control the detailed affairs of eight or ten small independent bodies of local representatives, would be set free to attend to matters of vastly greater importance; and county councils and those of larger towns and urban districts could properly be invested with less restricted and illusive powers than those which local representatives now exercise under the Management Act. If it is necessary to find a precedent for the reduction of local bodies, it may be found in the abolition of rural councils, and of urban councils in the Dublin area, by Mr. Cosgrave's Administration. To these suggestions we only can repeat our plea that the series of shreds and patches which now confuses the administrative outlook in the metropolitan area shall be replaced by the kind of garment which was designed by the Greater Dublin Tribunal. Has Mr. MacEntee the courage and the authority to face and deal with those realities? If so, he may escape the reputation of having been but one more in a succession of Ministers whose expedients came sadly to grief when they were tested by experience.

Dinner at Twenty

An ageless controversy has been revived recently in the correspondence columns of The Times by no less a personage than the Astronomer Royal, Mr. H. Spencer Jones. Like the case for a reformed calendar, the case for a twenty-four-hour clock has been put so often that it seems as if no new points could be made either for or against it. The change in the clock, however, is by far the simpler matter. There are no religious complications involved, and there are no deep-rooted difficulties of reorganisation, such as are inherent in the alteration of currency or measurements to the metric system. Many continental countries divide the day into twenty-four hours—at least for official purposes—instead of two twelve-hour periods. In virtually every army, including our own, the twenty-four-hour clock is used generally, and orders are given in terms of "23.00 hours," rather than in the last war's laborious "ack emmas" and "pip emmas." That the method of time-indication which has been deemed the most efficient for the armies would be more satisfactory for civilian use also, once the initial awkwardness had passed, appears to be clear enough. The ambiguity in the present statement of an hour, and the inconvenience of the necessary labels "a.m." and "p.m.," are sufficient reasons for adopting a system in which every hour is mentioned only once in a day. The British Government still believes that "there is no popular demand" for the twenty-four-hour clock, and the reaction when the B.B.C. employed it for a short time, some years ago, was not encouraging; but the Astronomer Royal believes that so many young men and women will have become familiar with the system in war-time that there may very well be a demand for it after the war. For official time-tables and the like it would be a great convenience; but one must doubt whether the ordinary man will ever get used to "dinner at twenty," or will submit willingly to the disturbance of his household by twenty-four chimes at the hour of midnight.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"ROMANCE AND REALITY"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your editorial of Wednesday, "Romance and Reality," as well as your editorial of to-day, seem to me more romantic than real. Indeed, a fog of unreality clouds everything said about the Irish language, whether in defence or attack. You describe An Taoiseach and his Ministers as 'ruthlessly forcing Irish on an unwilling people. In fact, only three of a Cabinet of ten know Irish, and I find it hard to believe that the remaining seven are as ruthless as you suggest. You quote Mr. de Valera as saying that the majority of the Irish people want the Irish language, but two years ago he publicly expressed an opposite opinion.

The unreality, or insincerity, which clings about the language question was brought home to me forcibly yesterday evening, when my daughter, aged six, asked me to "hear" her Catechism. She began with the Confiteor in Irish, and it was immediately clear that the version she had been taught was different from the one in her book. Her brother, aged nine, then volunteered to help with his Catechism, which contained two versions, but neither of these was the required one; and so it appears that there are four (or possibly forty) Irish versions of this simple prayer circulating in the Dublin schools.

The Minister for Education is one of the few who know Irish, and must be presumed to be the leading spirit in the fanatical crusade for the Irish language with which you credit the Government. God help the teachers! God help the children! God help the language!—Yours, etc.,

SEAN DOWLING.
68 Lower Baggot street, Dublin,
October 1st, 1943.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—As a person who has grown up under the present Government and experienced most of its efforts to teach Irish, may I make a few observations.

(a) Mr. de Valera has tackled the problem from the wrong end. He has taken as his motto: "Teach the children Irish, then educate them," instead of the obvious alternative. The result is that the children growing up now are illiterate in two languages—which, of course, is a decided advance on being illiterate in one. Had Mr. de Valera made it possible for them to have a good, all-round education up to the age of, say, 12 or 13, and then let them have the option of learning Irish, not only would they be more capable of getting an intelligent grasp of the language, but they would probably have a far more friendly attitude towards it than they have at present. The fact that by this method the shockingly low standard of education in Ireland might be raised slightly would not, perhaps, appeal to Mr. de Valera, whose main idea seems to be centred on the language.

(b) Does Mr. de Valera really believe that speaking Irish and playing Gaelic football will make the people feel more patriotic? Would not the reduction of unemployment, the relief of poverty and sickness, and the opening up of opportunities for young people, not only in Dublin, but throughout the country, be far more effective in binding the people of Ireland together? Why, then, does not Mr. de Valera spend some of the time and money which he uses in his effort to revive Irish to bring about these far more important reforms? Is the language more important than the people who speak it?

By all means, learn Irish and play Gaelic football; but a great deal more than that is needed if the Ireland of the future is to gain any degree of prosperity and security. I say with Nurse Cavell, "Patriotism is not enough."—Yours, etc.,

JOY RUDD.

October 1st, 1943.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In the Irish Times of September 29th you criticise the Government's policy in endeavouring to revive the Irish language. I hope you will allow me, as a constant reader and an Irish citizen, to criticise the attitude of the Irish Times to this question. It appears to me to be very prejudiced and very unpatriotic. If I am wrong, will you prove it by engaging some good writer who is sympathetic and knowledgeable, like Professor Corkery, to write a series of articles explaining the relation of a national language to a nation?

There is one overwhelming argument which converted me to the side of Irish, and that is—the people who oppose it. I found that everyone who was disloyal to Ireland, anti-Irish, un-Irish, indifferent, and ignorant of Irish history was against the language revival. On the other hand, all those who loved their country passionately and who were ready to sacrifice themselves and their possessions for her were in favour of the revival. I asked myself which of two groups was most likely to be right.

The argument that instead of reviving Irish we should concentrate on better conditions of living is surely very superficial. It does not follow that if we neglect the language we shall have better conditions of living. The reverse is more likely to be true, because it has been proved in other countries, particularly Denmark, that a national revival which includes a linguistic one precedes an econom revival? It is the spirit of a nation which matters. A nation that allows its language to die is in a state of decay, and nothing will stop the rot and revive it but a gospel of national revival. This is impossible without a revival of the language.—Yours, etc.,

UNA McC. DIX.

CELEBRITY CONCERT

Applause is a fairly good test of quality, and Miss Austra Bourne, the Australian prima donna, who appeared at a celebrity concert in aid of the Newspaper Press Fund at the Capitol Theatre, Dublin, yesterday, sang four encores. She has a voice of extraordinary clarity and power, which remains pure even on the highest notes. Although her virtuosity could best be judged in such pieces as "Ardon gl'incensi," from "Lucia di Lammermoor"; Benedict's "La Capinera" and "Lo! Here the Gentle Lark," such coloratura singing does not appeal to everybody, and the more familiar things, like "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Songs My Mother Taught Me" were more popular. She concluded her recital with "Ave Maria," the song which earned her release from an Italian internment camp. Honours must go to Miss Kitty O'Callaghan, the well-known pianist, and a flautist from the band, who accompanied Miss Bourne, and proved more than equal to a very difficult task.

Military bands, however good they may be—and the No. 1 Army Band is very good indeed—tend to make all music sound rather similar. For that reason an imaginative choice of programme is essential; hackneyed pieces, such as the "Tannhäuser" overture and the "Invitation to the Waltz" are not the wisest choice for a celebrity concert. The other selections included Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" Fantasia, Percy Grainger's "Molly on the Shore," and excerpts from Wagner's "The Mastersingers." The band concluded with effective orchestrations of two pieces by Rimsky Korsakov. Comdt. J. M. Doyle was the conductor.

FILM NOTES

FROM OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

MR. WILLIAM SAROYAN, the American novelist, is regarded by English critics as something of a literary enfant terrible. Their complaint is that he is vulgarly over-sentimental. He parades, and wallows in, emotions which the average Englishman is taught to avoid. If, however, these emotions cannot be avoided, they must on no account be expressed. Most critics concede, however, that Mr. Saroyan has his good qualities—a certain rugged sympathy with the mediocre, a broad sense of humour and a great belief in "the essential decency of things." His virtues and defects are both very noticeable in the film adaptation of his famous novel, The Human Comedy (Adelphi). It has its hackneyed moments, heaven knows, and it occasionally gives vent to outbursts of sentiment that are so heavily underlined that they are positively laughable (e.g., "I get a thrill every time I look at that old flag. It used to remind me of Washington and Lincoln, but now I think of my brother, Marcus, who's in the Army"). Again, it must be admitted that Saroyan allows brother Marcus (who's in the Army) to express to a soldier friend sentiments about God and life that would do great credit to a thoughtful eight-year-old, but, in spite of these little lapses and collapses, the film rises in places to very great heights, indeed. Unforgettable is the moment when five-year-old Ulysses Macauley, who cannot understand what it is to be afraid, is suddenly terrified by the grotesque movement of a mechanical dummy in a chemist's shop window. His panic-stricken flight through the streets is easily the most convincing scene in the picture. Then, there is a pretty touch of irony when the director causes a shot of dozens of troops singing "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms" to "mix" into a silhouette of a train conveying an enormous load of munitions.

Mickey Rooney, as Homer Macauley, who works in a telegraph office after school, gives a splendidly restrained performance, but has his thunder stolen by Jack Jenkins as the youthful Ulysses; if he maintains his present promise, this five-year-old actor is going to be one of the greatest names in screen history. Others who acquit themselves well are Frank Morgan, Marsha Hunt, James Craig and Barry Nelson. Clarence Brown directed, and did it very well. This is a film that nobody should miss.

Reveille with Beverly (Metropole) will not be everybody's dish by a long chalk, but it will, undoubtedly, attract the boogie-woogie brotherhood. Count Basie and his Band are present. So are Duke Ellington and his Band. Likewise Bob Crosby and his Band. The Mills Brothers distort sound through their hands and noses, and "Night and Day" is sung by a rather anæmic young man called Frank Sinatra. The story (when it breaks through) is amusing enough, and is well acted by Ann Miller and William Wright.

Rhythm of the Island (Carlton) is not likely to pool all this season's Academy awards, but it will pass the time of day for you quite brightly. Allan Jones, dressed as a native chief most of the time, sings pleasantly about love and nature, and Andy Devine is inevitably present, whining about something. The most surprising thing about this picture is that Dorothy Lamour is not in the cast. The other attraction, How's About It? involves the Andrews Sisters, but is good for a few laughs all the same.

Ebb Tide (Green) is an interesting re-issue, with splendid acting by Oscar Homolka, Ray Milland, Lloyd Nolan and Barry Fitzgerald. Laurel and Hardy's Swiss Miss (also revived) completes a well worth-while double feature.

The Man in the Trunk (Corinthian) offers honest-to-goodness melodrama, with J. Carroll Naish.

Shanty Town (Royal) is an ingenuous musical comedy designed to introduce Miss Mary Lee, a young singer in the Judy Garland manner. If that is its only intention, it succeeds triumphantly.

LATE SIR WILLIAM DE COURCY-WHEELER

A Memorial Service for Sir William Ireland de Courcy-Wheeler, Knt., M.D., B.Ch., B.A.O., Past President and Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, took place in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, yesterday evening, and was largely attended by members of the medical profession.

Paying tribute to Sir William in an address, the Dean of Christ Church, the Very Rev. E. H. Lewis-Crosby, said that wherever William Wheeler's patients went throughout the world they carried with them memories of his kindness and rejoiced to speak of his friendship. He had a great zest for life, and, while a citizen of the world, made Ireland his home.

Other officiating clergy were the Rev. W. T. Grey, Canon Goff, and the Rev. R. J. Ross.

At the Service were: Major de Courcy-Wheeler (brother), Captain Horatio de Courcy-Wheeler (brother), Mrs. Powell and Mrs. E. B. L'Estrange (sisters), Lieut.-Colonel E. B. L'Estrange (brother-in-law), Mrs. R. de Courcy-Wheeler (sister-in-law), Mr. Cecil de Courcy-Wheeler and Mr. Desmond de Courcy-Wheeler (nephews), Miss Joan de Courcy-Wheeler and Miss Kathleen de Courcy-Wheeler (nieces), Mr. G. Shaw, Mrs. M. Byrn, and Miss W. de C.-Neale (cousins).

Among the general attendance were:—Commander Rhodes (representing Sir John Maffey), Mr. A. R. A. Weenink (Consul-General for the Netherlands), the President of the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland; Sir John Lumsden, K.B.E.; Dr. Ninian Falkiner (Master of the Rotunda), Dr. T. G. Moorhead, Dr. and Mrs. T. Garratt Hardman, Major H. R. L'Estrange, O.B.E.; Major F. A. L'Estrange, Mr. R. Keatinge, O.B.E.; Dr. Robert J. Rowlette, F.R.C.P.I.; Dr. A. Parsons, Mr. T. Graham, Dr. and Mrs. R. Wilson, Mr. Raymond Brooke, Mr. R. W. Ward, Mr. J. A. Young, Miss Rita Costello (secretary), Miss R. Jones (Lady Superintendent, City of Dublin Nursing Institution), Dr. James Beckett.

DR. MACALISTER'S RETIREMENT

The National Monuments Advisory Council—set up under the National Monuments Act, 1930—has accepted with great regret the resignation of Dr. R. A. S. Macalister, Litt.D., M.R.I.A., F.S.A., Emeritus Professor of Celtic Archæology at University College, Dublin, from the Chairmanship of the Council, to which he had been unanimously elected at its first meeting in 1930. The Council recorded its very high appreciation of his conduct in the chair, which he had occupied continuously since then, and accorded its most hearty wishes for his happiness in retirement. Dr. Macalister is succeeded in the Chairmanship by the Right Reverend Monsignor John Hynes, M.A., B.D., M.R.I.A., President of University College, Galway, while Dr. Sean P. O'Riordain, M.A., Ph.D., has been elected as Vice-Chairman.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

I AM rather puzzled about this "Irish Exhibition of Living Art"—I quote the title from the cattle hog. I mean, do these people think I'm dead? How come that my majestic "Fishing Boats, Galway" is not on view? I have searched the exhibition through twice and nowhere can I find any trace of a work bearing my signature. There may be some mistake but this is not as it should be. Well and good if they thought I was dead, it is an explanation if not an excuse. But it cannot be too often pointed out that when the Irish Times reported on the 7th of June, 1917, that I had been "interred" at Scarborough for treason and hostility to the king's majesty, the demise was political and typographical and there was no question of fresh-smelling cedarwood or the shrill cries of distressed womenfolk. Nor was the Irish capital in mourning, still less a ship bearing a coffinful of stones ploughing the Irish sea. I was merely interned and I may say I was released immediately me papers was got through from Dublin. But enough.

As I say, this "Irish Exhibition of Living Art" puzzles me. What is intended by the term "Living Art?" Surely, I mean, Art is . . . intrinsically . . . live. Art lives always, drawing its mystical vitality from the eyes of the passing generations of beholders (I mean). If a work dies or is dead, surely it is not . . . I mean . . . "Art." And what do they mean by "Irish Exhibition"? Did they intend an "Exhibition of Irish Living Art"? That I do not know but this much I do—there is absolutely nothing Irish about the exhibition, not a sign of a cudgel or whiskey-bottle anywhere in the place. Moreover, I know of no reason for assuming that the objects shown would be of any interest to paddy. Nor can I for the life of me see why they print the Greek word ila in very large letters on the cover of the catalogue. Granted that there is something civilised about Greek, that it is decorative, why use dialect? (I mean).

Now that I'm here I suppose I might as well review this exhibition. I have never written an informed and intelligent review of a Dublin exhibition of pictures, but pray don't let that worry you, neither has anybody else.

Dominating the exhibition is Jack Yeats's "Homage to Bret Harte," a sombre masterpiece of strange lights, arresting alike by reason of the deftness of the paintwork and the chaotic order of this artist's elusive technique. Mary Swanzy's "Between the Wars" is charmingly conceived and executed with that feeling for colour which one has come to expect from her. "The Lake," by Evie Hone, slightly evocative of Brunicelli and the Italian school, pleases by reason of the bold approach. Joan Jameson's "Sleeping Girl" is a vivid thing of yellows and chromes well up to the level of this artist's best work. As to Norah McGuinness, one has only to examine "Evening in Galway" or "Rathfarnham Garden" to wonder once again why we do not see more of the work of this fine artist. Whether the mood is macabre—one recalls her masterly "Capriccio"—or softly communicative, one encounters a sureness, an acute experience of colour that satisfies. Mainie Jellett contributes a very fine "Western Procession," a strikingly successful essay in the art of this most individualistic of Irish painters. "Dreamer" by Cecil Salkeld, has the deftness one comes to expect from this gifted artist. "Constitution Hill," by Bea Orpen, though unfortunately rather badly hung, is a beautiful thing of chromes and yellows, painted with exquisite insouciance. One cannot deal in the course of a short article with the very varied and striking exhibits and no person who is interested in art should fail to. . . . . .

Faugh! Who could be amused by stuff like that? I can only say that I'm damn glad there are no war pictures in this exhibition. It saves one the trouble of calling it a Salon de R.A.F.-U.S.A.

T.C.D. NOTES

BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE examinations are in full swing. Professors in cap and gown, examinees emerging from the examination halls waving their papers, agitated groups of undergraduates conducting a post-mortem on the morning's paper while they consume their hurried lunch on buffet, are typical College sights of the moment. The remaining Moderatorship examinations are beginning this week. To-day the First Autumn Entrance examination and the B.A.I. Degree examination are beginning; on October 5th the Junior Freshman examination will start, and the B.A. degree and the Engineering Entrance examination will begin on October 8th.

The University bell calling for Morning Chapel has again roused the sleepers with its deafening noise. On Sunday morning figures in white surplices could be observed on their way to the Service. All this activity shows that Michaelmas term started officially last Friday, although Arts lectures will not be resumed till Monday, October 17th. Lectures in Medicine, however, will begin this Wednesday. This should cause a new influx of students returning to College after the Long Vacation.

Applications for the Salmon and Culverwell Funds must reach the Provost this morning. Both these funds have been established in order to give grants to students with limited means towards the payment of their College fees.

COMING ACTIVITIES

News about next term's activities has already come in. The Dublin University Biological Association will hold its annual opening meeting on Saturday, October 23rd, at 7.45 p.m., when the President, Professor O'Donel Browne, will read a paper on "Whither Obstetrics?" The President is a great authority on this subject, and is well known as the author of "Practical Obstetrics." It is hoped that the following will speak to the paper: Professor F. J. Browne, M.D., Sc.D., F.R.C.S., F.R.O.G., the holder of the Chair of Obstetrics and Gynæcology in London University and author of several books on obstetrics; Senator W. R. Fearon, M.A., M.B., Sc.D., F.T.C.D., the Professor of Bio-chemistry in this university; Dr. V. McCormick, M.B., F.R.C.P.I., and Dr. Brian Pringle, M.B., F.R.C.P.I. This meeting will be of considerable interest to the medical world.

The Dublin University Experimental Science Association will hold their opening meeting on Monday, November 8th, when the President, Dr. D. A. Webb, will read a paper on "Nature and Perception of Colour." It is hoped that Professor Fox, of London University, will be among the speakers.

The rugby and hockey teams played their first matches of the season on Saturday, though, unfortunately, not with the success which might have been hoped for.

SCRAP IRON PRICES

Addressing Dublin Rotary Club last Monday, Mr. J. C. Tonge said that the price of wrought iron and steel scrap was approximately £2 per ton, and not "£10 to £120 per ton," as was stated in last Tuesday's issue.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

"BRITAIN has always been, and, in my opinion, will always remain, predominantly a livestock country whatever Government is in power and whatever policy may be adopted post-war," declared Mr. R. S. Hudson, Minister for Agriculture, at Carmarthen yesterday. "It is imposed on us by our situation, our soil and our climate." He revealed that if British farmers did not look out they would find themselves desperately short of livestock. "We are already getting short by about a million head," he said. "There has been a big drop in the numbers of our beef cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry. Now, however, the quantity and quality of our grass is going up by leaps and bounds. Over the next ten years—and especially over the next three or four — the new leys now being sown to restore the health of arable that has carried its share of white straw crops will be far more productive of feed for livestock than much of the old grass on each farm that has been ploughed or that still has to be ploughed up. All the evidence goes to show that the world will be particularly short of oils, fats and beef from this year onwards."

First Aeroplane

The Wright brothers' little aeroplane in the Science Museum in South Kensington—the first to fly—may go back to America, as Mr. Orville Wright, the owner, is reported to have made up his quarrel with the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. He allowed the machine to come to London many years ago because he was angry at the reluctance of the Smithsonian Institute to agree that it was, in fact, the first aeroplane to fly.

Rose Hip Harvest

Rose hips are now ripening in hedgerows and gardens a fortnight earlier than usual, and thousands of willing hands—mostly those of schoolchildren — are ready to start out in the collection campaign. The target set by the Ministry of Supply averages twenty tons a county, and, if this quantity is achieved, it will be sufficient for the whole of the coming year. Rose hip syrup is rich in Vitamin C, and contains twenty times as much of this as orange juice. War-time diets are often deficient in Vitamin C, and, as a result, they decrease resistance to illness and may produce scurvy.

Atlantic Cable Layer

The death is announced, at 57, of Mr. Victor H. Rowland, who supervised the laying of two of the world's fastest cables across the Atlantic—the 1925 cable from Penzance to Robert's Bay, Newfoundland; and the 1928 cable from the Azores to Newfoundland. Engaged in cable work since 1904, he served for many years aboard the cable-laying ship Electra before entering the service of the Western Union, of which he had been chief ocean cable engineer since 1937. He was well known in Valentia, Ballinskelligs and Clifden.

New Divorce Record

With an arrear of 1,000 cases from the Trinity Term, 3,000 divorce cases, a new record, are to face the five London Divorce Court Judges when the Michaelmas Term opens on Tuesday of next week. The majority of the suits are undefended. Many proposals have been made to speed up hearings, and it is likely that all forms of divorce actions will soon be taken at Assize courts. At present, only poor persons' cases and undefended petitions may be so heard, all others coming to the Law Courts in the Strand.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

An Admission

Bureaucracy has admitted one failure, that dealing with the pigs and bacon industry, and more admissions may be on their way. Ireland may yet be grateful to the pig.

A friend recently remarked that if the Rose of Tralee herself wanted a half-pound of rashers in her home town she would not even get the smell of the frying-pan. An exaggeration, I know; but that is how the bacon muddle has hit Tralee, which in the last two years has watched opportunities for work in her bacon factories dwindling—and Dublin, with many other centres, has seen less work in her pork shops. It is these factors that produced the change of front by the Minister for Agriculture, and not before time.

Will this admission alter things in the pig-breeding industry? I am told that freedom of action for producers and buyers will right the position within a year or two. The small farmer and the cottager will be induced to go back "into bacon" by the attraction of higher prices, and already the pig-sty is fighting back into its own rightful place.

The Irish Film Society

I am glad to see that the venue of the Irish Film Society for the coming season has been changed to the Olympia Theatre; for, although the programmes always were worth the trouble of a trip to Terenure, the added convenience of the central theatre will make the prospect of the shows still more enticing.

The programme for the season includes many interesting titles. "The Blue Angel," the film which made Marlene Dietrich famous, will be shown in March, and Jean Gabin will be seen in Duvivier's "La Belle Equipe" in December. Pudovkin's "General Suvarov" and Dzigan's "We from Kronstadt," a film of the civil war, will represent Russia, while Fritz Lang's "Metropolis" will be screened in March. This, incidentally, is the only film of the season which has been seen in Dublin before. A film which interests me very much, by the sound of it, is 'The New Gulliver,' a puppet adaptation by Ptusko of Swift's satire.

I have mentioned only a few of the titles of the big "pictures"; in many cases the supporting features are just as interesting. On the whole, membership of the society seems to promise good value for one's guinea.

A Deceiver

It is no secret that the weather in the last three months has been a source of grievance to many holiday-makers, though one of this newspaper's staff who has just returned from South County Wicklow told of delightful days down there while we in Dublin were shivering.

Barometers once again have not been a trustworthy guide to the state of things to come. There is no more valuable guide than a barometer for the predicting of the weather, but it needs careful interpretation. There are several cases on record of the barometer giving a false impression of what was to be expected. On March 9th, 1876, the barometer fell over an inch in Scotland and nearly an inch in England, most of Ireland and the north of France, yet the entire depression recorded passed off without causing any gale worth notice in these islands.

There also is a record of a heavy gale in 1861 accompanied by a rising barometer. While the glass indicated fair weather, 237 ships bound for the south of England with coal were almost annihilated in Hartlepool Bay and its vicinity.

Information!

A correspondent writes:—

Could there be a city with a population bigger than that of the Twenty-six Counties, of which the majority of the people in the Twenty-six Counties never have heard? As a matter of fact, how many persons could name the eighth largest city in the world?

Osaka, second city in Japan, has a population of over 3,000,000. Outside Japan not a great deal is known about it. Its palace, however, is supposed to be the finest piece of architecture in the Empire. Its only other claim to fame that I can discover is that about one-third of the place was burned down in 1909.

My correspondent's additional information, that Osaka owes its origin in 1495 to Rennio Shonin, the eighth head of the Shin-Shu sect, does not stir me the least little bit.

QUIDNUNC.

DNIEPER BATTLE STRATEGY

BY OUR MILITARY CORRESPONDENT.

WITHIN the next week or so, we should have an answer to the question, whether the Germans propose to stand on the Dnieper or to fall back altogether to the west. Their own spokesmen have not, as yet, given us any clue to their intention; but, during the last few days—and as the actual river-line came into the picture — there seems to have been more serious fighting at the more important points.

GERMAN PLANS

We can safely rule out any idea of German inability to oppose any Russian advance stubbornly, as and when their High Command directs such a course. We have seen in Italy what can be done by them in the way of systematic resistance—in face of handicaps nowise less marked than those experienced in Russia. If the Germans have latterly not defended à outrance in Russia, it is because they have something else in mind, as controlling their strategy on the Eastern front.

The Dnieper line begins near Melitopol, on the Sea of Azov, and runs due north along the railway by Federovka and Vasilevka to Zaporozhe. It seems, by the way, that the Germans are no longer dependent on this line for Crimea's supplies. They are said to have built a short link line from Kherson-Aleshki to Perekop. This southern sector is not on the Dnieper at all; but it is much the shortest, and rests on water barriers at either end.

Northward of this river itself is the line by Dnepropetrovsk, Cherkassy, Kiev, Ryechitsa, Zhlobin, Rogachev, Mogilev, Orsha. All these are situated on the commanding western bank, which they reinforce as so many centres of resistance. Of places named in connection with the Dnieper defence line, only three—Zaporozhe, Kremenchug and Gomel—are east of the river. Gomel is on the Sozh tributary, some score of miles short of the main stream.

IMPASSABLE SECTOR

The extensive stretch from Kiev to Mogilev—250 miles in a direct line—is practically unassailable. Not only is it strong in itself, but it is deeply backed by the marshy basis of the great tributaries, Pripet and Beresina. Every invasion of Russia has passed either north or south of this impassable, central sector; and any Russian invasion of Central Europe must necessarily do the same. The more likely direction is that between Kiev and the Sea of Azov, because it is there that the Russians are best able to develop a big-scale effort.

The situation of Orsha should be noted—at an angle where the river, from a north-south direction, bends sharply to the east, Moscow-wards. From Orsha the front runs almost due north to Leningrad—via Vitebsk, Nevel, Staraya Russa and Novgorod. It is a little strange that, on this front, the Russians have never achieved anything beyond a local gain at any time. But north of Moscow there are neither resources nor communications comparable with those in the centre and south. Incidentally, the German attack against the Rhzev-Tikhvin front, late in 1941, failed for precisely the same reason.

SHORT LINE

It would seem, therefore, that the Germans at the present time hold as short and strong a line as they can find inside Russian territory. It does not seem possible for them to better the position materially by any further retreat. Moreover, we have passed the autumn equinox, and rain has been mentioned in the Vitebsk region. The progress of events on the Eastern front during October will be viewed with interest.

OBITUARY

MR. LIAM O RINN

The chief of the Dail translation staff, Mr. Liam O Rinn, a well-known linguist and Gaelic scholar, died yesterday at the age of fifty-seven. With four of his brothers he took part in the 1916 rising, and when the translating staff was formed in 1923 he was one of the first members. In 1941 he became chief. He was imprisoned in Frongoch and Ballykinlar before the Treaty. Mr. O Rinn did a tremendous amount of work for the revival of Irish, and, although not a native speaker, he was an authority on the language. He was a very fine linguist, and his Gaelic works include translations from French, German and Russian authors. At the time of his death he was working on a translation of "The Merchant of Venice." His translations of parts of "Paradise Lost" appeared in various issues of United Ireland, and he had written about 300 articles in Irish on various subjects. He was for a time on the staff of the Freeman's Journal before joining the Dail staff, and contributed a daily article in Irish. Apart from German, Russian and French, Mr. O Rinn had a fine knowledge of Welsh, Dutch and Afrikaans. He translated the Constitutions of Eire and the Irish Free State. His book on the late Stephen McKenna was awarded the President's prize for works in Irish. Apart from the considerable volume of translation which he did, Mr. O Rinn wrote a number of original works in Irish which achieved popularity. He is survived by his widow and six children.
